Dear Steve:

This note is to convey my deep appreciation for your kind generosity in helping us in this time of need.

My husband and I, have known you and some members of your family for more than 15 years now. Although our relationship has been business related, that of landlord and tenant, you have always been accessible to us for discussion, consultation and assistance in many ways. Throughout the years, you have demonstrated attributes that are beyond that of a strict business relationship. Your approachable nature, understanding ways and courteous concern for the well being of your tenants have all combined to illustrate that behind The Aldgate Group, there are kind and good hearted people who are driving the business.

Over 12 years ago, we had approached your Dad seeking his wisdom and counsel about business in general. He generously donated his time and provided us with sound advice which we to this day still very much appreciate. In our venture with another company, you also came to our assistance, and have always responded with timely and efficient resolution of any problem/concern pertaining to our tenancy. Such care of your tenants are attributes that have contributed to your success and are a distinguishing factor that puts you and your corporation way above the rest.

Thank you Steve and may you and your family enjoy the best of health, happiness and prosperity throughout this season and beyond.

Sincerely,

Sandra Jagmohan
